Additional Information for Individuals Whose Personal Data is Subject to Swiss Data Protection Legislation

This Privacy Notice has been drawn up with a view to the Data Protection Legislation, including the GDPR and the Swiss FDPA. While both legislations are fairly similar, there are some notable differences that we want to explain to help you navigate and understand this Privacy Notice more easily. For instance, the Privacy Notice includes references to the "lawful basis" for our processing. A lawful basis is a requirement under the GDPR, but not under the FDPA. As such, when reading through the Privacy Notice you may disregard the lawful bases explained, or take it as further information about the reasons for us to process your personal data.

Another difference is that the FDPA requires controllers to state the countries where your personal data may be transferred. As noted above, in the Section "WHERE DO WE STORE YOUR PERSONAL DATA", your personal data may be transferred to recipients outside Switzerland, including in the UK and in the European Economic Area ("EEA", which includes the EU member states and Iceland, Norway and Liechtenstein). However, recipients may be located elsewhere, for example in all locations where On is present (see <https://culture.on.com/where-we-are>), but also in other countries, for example where we have third party service providers, or where these use other providers. As such, and as with other global brands, your personal data may be transferred globally, but always in accordance with our obligations under the applicable Data Protection Legislation.
